LIKELIHOOD OF ANY TROUBLE

An Agreement Has Already Been Reached as to the Question of Damages, It Is Asserted.

Berlin, October 14.—The papers have many articles regarding the Samoan question reiterating the statement as to a

A leading foreign official, referring to the matter, said to the Associated Press representative: "All these statements are mere guess work and without foundation in fact. The powers are negotiating with a view of eliminating the difficulty and Cotton region bulletin for the twenty-four there is little likelihood of any trouble hours ending i a. m., yesterday, 75th meribetween them, as a settlement will proba- tian time. bly be reached satisfactorily to all concerned. So far as the damage question goes, an agreement has already been reached between Germany and Great Britsin, and the United States are not op-posed on principle to the same idea of settlement."

On the same authority the Associated Press learns that a strong wish is felt at St. Petersburg that the principal repre-sentatives of the powers participating in the conference at The Hague, which are willing to sign the agreements reached there should proceed to the capital of The Netherlands and affix their formal signatures in that city. Italy and Austria have already done so and Germany will soon join after the formal obstacles have been removed. The United States ambases of the control of the cont been removed. The United States am-bassador, Andrew White, says he is awatting instructions from Washington regarding the matter.

Chicago, October 14 .- A special cable to the Chicago Tribune from Berlin says: News comes from Apia that the natives have proclaimed Tamasesa as king, de-spite the original agreement of the Amerionns, Germans and British to abolish that office.

The Cologne Gazette's Apia correspondent sends a long indictment of the consular government. He says the natives do not conceal their disrespect for the representatives of the treaty powers; relative therete a singular incident is given as an illustration: Tamasese invited the officials and the leading white citizens of Apia to a wedding feast; all went except the Germans; the American consul, Osborne, made a speech, thus giving the affair official recognition; thereupon Tamasese's followers danced and performed imprompts verses proclaiming Tamasese as king, announcing the destruction of the

To a fellow guest at the court fete on Monday in honor of Queen Wilhelmina of The Netherlands, General Harrison said: "Emparer William is most agreeable in conversation and surprisingly well informed regarding men and things in the United States. He spoke at length and with the greatest interest of the United States navy and expressed his admiration of the particism and far-rightedness of American public men and of the action of the American congress in so quickly and at such a sacrifice creating so powerful and so efficient a navy. The emperor said that, after a thorough study of the naval operations during the war between the United States and Spain, he had formed the highest possible opinion of the business-like efficiency of the officers and men of the American navy, remarking that it was a splendid feature of American character to fairly worship the nation's herees."

The steamer was run to the beach at the outbreak of the flames and burned to the water's edge. The bodies of two victims of the disaster drifted ashere about noon on the beach one was the body of a woman about 28 years old and the other a girl of 4 years. The Nutunes State, with ever a hundred people on board, bound from Connecticut towns to New York, was discovered on fire about 5:30, when she was within a few miles of Sanda Point. The flames were between the roward cabin and the donasy engine room. The fire was on the main deck and seemed to be a small affair. Captain Brooks, not wishing to needlessiy slarm the passengers, ordered the crew to work as quietly as possible with buckets and hose. For about twenty minutes the flames did not seem to be dangerous and the men appeared to have them in control. Suddenly they burst late a furious blaze amidanty. Beggageman Samuri Japaes was detached from the Bre-fighters and sent to alarm the passengers and all the members of the crew who were in the forward part of the boat. He ran through the passengers and selection of the passengers and stiffling smoke to jump overboard.

The first person to leave the burning steamer was Jaynes, who gave the alarm to the passengers. When the smoke and flames forced him from amidships, he almost exhausted, made a leap for the sen. In doing so he struck his lead against the guard rail and was stunned, falling into the water help-less. A launch from the steam yacht Kismet picked him un and warried him to the Kismet, where the brave fellow died shortly after. The Nutmeg State had hardly struck when several passing craft came to her rescue and sent out lifeboats to pick up passengers struggling in the water.

An unknown woman passenger, afraid to jump in the water, although provided with a life belt, was seen to fall back to the blazing deck. A man passenger was trying to keep afloat on an ear, became exhausted and was drowned.

When it became apparent that the Nutmeg affect on an ear, became exhausted and was drowned.

When it became apparent that the Nutmeg was doomed to destruction, the dozen or so of her freight handlers are east to have taken possession of the first of the lifeboats taunched. They fought back any of the women or men who tried to get into the boats and refused to take the chiffern. It was impossible for Captain Brooks to centrol the rowdy, cowardly freight handlers and they were utterly oblivious to the perils of the passengers. When the passengers were forced from this lifeboat it doubled the demands on a second, which was lowered, and a wild scramble of the pasic-stricten neople ensued. This boat was overloaded and overturned. It could not be righted and the men, women and children remained in the chilly water clinging to the boat until help came.

The tugboat Reed ran under the atern of the Nutmeg and some of the passengers lumped to its deck. When the tug went for ward and made an effort to save the imprisoned men the crew the heat was so intense that it drove the tug away and it again turned its attention to picking the people from the water.

that it drove the tug away and it again turned its attention to picking the people from the water.

It is believed that seven men of the Bridgenort boat were hursed to death in their quarters. The captain and several of the crew escaped on the steamer Lawrence and the body of Haggagemaster Jaynes was also conveyed to the Hartford liner, which proceeded on her way to this city.

Of the soveral of the rescued aboard only four needed hospital treatment.

They are: Mrs. Joseph Hill and H. J.
Hill, her son. Philadelphia; Mrs. Wilkes of Work street. Philadelphia; Mrs. H. P. Purcell, New York City.

The excitement was such at the abandonment of the burning vessel that no positive statement as to the exact number of persons who perished can be obtained from the officers of the boat.

The Nutmer State was a weeden propeller of a little over a thousand tens and for the last seven years has carried freight and pas sengers between Connecticut towns and this city. She carried a large quantity of freight, which was destroyed. There was aboard a consignment of cartridges in the hold, and when the flames reached them they began to explode and continued firing for some time.

The boat was valued at $70,000.
